METHODIST DRIVE

Movement Started in Memphis to Develop Missions Has Become International.

Sunday will be observed throughou Methodism as the centenary of Metho fist missions. One hundred years ago the church organized its first mission ry society. The first missionaries were sent among the American Indiana and the work was so blessed that the plasionary work apreac rapidly and became one of the predominating features of Methodism, expanding year by year until the whole world came within its scope.

The centeners movement was con-by year until the whole world came within its scope.

The centenary movement was conceived and planned by the Methodist church, South. It was the suggestion of the Rev. W. W. Pinson, D. D., secretary of the beard of missions, that plans be inaugurated in co-operation with the other branches of the church, for an advance along all missionary lines in connection with the event.

A centenary commission was formed, which called a meeting of 100 of the leading laymen and 75 ministers at Memphis in March, 1213, where a program commensurate with the occasion, and in line with the duty and opportunities of the church was formulated.

After a careful survey of the needs and the times, the committee of 100 concluded that in view of the great crisis facing the church during the reconstruction period, and in order to construction period, and in order to make the most of the opportunity pre-sented, the Methodist church, South, should enlist 20,000 laymen for more active work in the church, 500 properly active work in the church, 500 properly qualified young people for missionary work and raise $55,000,000 to maintain and extend the work of the church during the next five years.

Every branch of the church joined heartily in the centenary movement along similar lines. The northern branch fixed on $50,000,000 as the amount necessary to carry on its work for the five-year period, the Canadian Methodists set $15,000,000 as their goal, and the Methodist Protestant church, the Free Methodist church and the Negro Methodist church and the Negro Methodist church each mapped out a program calling for several million dol-Methodist church each mapped out a program calling for several million dolars. Each branch will conduct its own campaign, but the drives all will be made simultaneously. The mission work of the various branches of the church is so apportioned that none of the mission fields conflict or overlap. The Rev. W. B. Beauchamp, D. D. of Nashville, director-general of the movement, will open the campaign in Memphis Sunday, preaching at the St. John's church at II a. m., and occupying the pulpit at the First church at 8 p. m. Arrangements are being made to care for record-breaking crowds at both services.

At the First Methodist church the At the First Methodist church the morning service will begin at 10:45 o'clock. All of the team captains and team workers will attend this service. The entire membership of First church is also urged to be present. The service will consist of short addresses by the Rev. H. S. Spragins, T. M. Salter, C. C. Breeden and John R. Pepper. After the morning service a dinner will be served in Epworth hall for the team captains and their workers, after which all the workers will go out to canvass the membership of the church in the interest of the centenary.

At 5:30 p. m. the workers again will assemble in Epworth hall where a lunch will be served and reports of the afternoon's work submitted.

At 8 p. m. the entire membership of the First church will assemble in the main auditorium of the church to hear the rsults of the day's work, and listen to an address by Dr. Beauchamp.

Programs similar in the main will be observed at each of the 47 churches of the Memphis district.

Sunday noon 25,000 centenary workers will set out to canvass the entire membership of the church to raise the $35,000,000 fund set for carrying out the comprehensive plans of the church for the next five years.

More than 600 worsers will engage in the drive in the Memphis district, With $300,000 as the local district's goal, and the workers ready and eager for the start, prospects are declared unusually bright for a swift, whirlwind campaign that will take the quota over the top before dusk falls Monday.

Mr. Pepper, campaign director for the Memphis conference, and J. A. will be oversubscribed. The official date for the campaign is May 18-25, but the Memphis district is expected to reach its goal by Monday night.

Returns of the Memphis conference will be posted hourly by telegraph in the office of Mr. Pepper, on the seventh floor of the Goodwyn Institute building. All churches will report to their campaign directors, these directors will report to their district directors, thence to the local conference director, thence to the local conference director. Bach night at 11 o'clock Mr. Pepper will wire the net results from this district to Dr. Beauchamp at Nashville.

Be true to your own church. Give it a hearty and loyal support by word and deed. Remember that it belongs to you, that it is part of your religious life, that in it and by it you are being trained for usefulness here and immortality hereafter, that its honer is much in your keeping, that its growth and purify are affected to the extent of your influence by what you say and do, that people who have faith in your word will look upon it largely according to representation, and that with its good name and prosperity are bound up in the glory of the blessed Jesus. Then do nothing to injure its reputation or to weaken its power for good or to mar its fellowship.—Ex.

A Tale of Two Fists

THE LIFE STORY OF JACK DEMPSEY

ON TO NEVADA.

There was a friendly restaurant keeper in Pocatello. Idaho, an honest seul, who has a warm spot in Jack Dempsey as heart. It seems that Dempsey was always rather partial to restaurant keepers in the haleyon days of his boing, and his memory is freckled with bright spots of yecollection which stand for some especially kind beniface.

I gather the impression that any time our hero went hungry in those days it was because there was a widespread famine. His stomach never thought his throat was cut if there was any food in the immediate neighborhood. This Pocatello restaurant keeper, square fellow that he was, used to feed Jack and others of Jack's lik-Jank's lik at that period being what is technically described as "busted guys." In return for this kindness, and at the restaurant keeper's suggestion, Jack and his lik used to fare them forth of the winter evenings to the railroad yards and borrow coal off the fuel laden gondolas of the railroad company, which had more than it could use, anyway.

This coal was used by the restaurant which had more than it could use, any-way.

This coal was used by the restaurant keeper to cook the food which Jack and his lik and the cash customers as well devoured. It was a pleasant arrangement all round.

But it seems the rallroad company was mighty indecent in its view of the matter. It was unwilling to see an honest restaurant keeper prosper or a bunch of "busted guys" keep the wrinkles out of their abdomens, and one almighty frosty night a batch of rallroad cops took after Jack and his lik.

They left coal spread along the railroad right of way for quite a distance, as did Jack and his lik, as they hastened off from there. The poor old

He never stopped going on that occasion until he Reached Reno! Nevada, and there, oddly snough, he found more friendly restaurant men. I figure that Jack had a positive affinity for restaurateurs. These Reno restaurant folks were the Anderson Brothers, and their piace was not large, but neither were their hearts small.

They fed Jack freely from their store, and in return Jack worked a bit in the kitchen, or did a turn in the dine is groom, as the case might require. Meantime he was looking for a fight Antone LaGrave and Jimmy Boyd were booked for a contest, and Jack got on in the preliminary with a fellow name has the hird round with a right hand smash to the jaw.

The quarterly meeting of the Memphis Federation of the Christian Woman's Board of Missions Auxiliaries of the five Christian churches of this city was held Friday in the Linden Avenue Christian church. Morning and afternoon seasions were held, at which representatives were present from the following churches, vis.: Decatur Street, Merton Avenue, Linden Avenue, Third Street and McLemore Avenue, Third Street and McLemore Avenue. The morning seasion began at 11 o'clock, with a short devotional service, conducted by the Rev. George W. Kemper, paster of the McLemore Avenue church. This was followed by a brief business session, at which reports were received from the five local auxiliaries, showing a very gratifying growth during the past three months. The morning address was delivered by the Rev. Walter M. White, paster of the Linden Avenue church, on "The Brighter Side," in which he sounded a note of optimism as to the future work of the church.

The afternoon session was opened with a Bible story, told in a very helpful way by Mrs. Lee E. Glass. The following papers, dealing in a convincing way with the various phases of missionary work, were then read, viz.: "Called to the Colors," by Mrs. C. E. Paty, "The Battle," by Mrs. J. D. Campbell. A missionary story, told by Mrs. J. J. Carroll, brought the day's program to a successful end.

The officers of the federation are as follows; President, Mrs. J. S. Calhoun, Mrs. J. E. Davis, Mrs. Tennyson, Mrs. C. E. Thompson and Miss Bence; secretary, Mrs. Hubert; treasurer, Mrs. Jones. The next meeting of the federation will be held with the Merton Avenue church on Aug. 15. Christian.

BRITISH COLLIERIES MAKE HUGE PROFITS

MAKE HUGE PROFITS

LONDON, May 17. (Correspondence of the Associated Press.)—Testimony concerning enormous profits made by various British collieries was given at the inquiry of the coal mines commission by Albert Emil Davies, general manager of the banking corporation, and a writer on finance and economics. He stated that £1,000 invested in 1903 in shares, then quoted at par, of a certain company would have earned dividends equal to about £3,800 and would now be saleable at £5,800.

In the case of another company he said that "for the ten years ended in 1918 the divideds paid were equivalent to about £34 per cent of the increased capital, or over 300 per cent on the actual capital."

The witness said that in most cases the extent of profits in coal shad been obscured by the capitalisation of reserves or other readjustments of capital.

"By these methods and by dividends," he testified, "the most successful companies are able to return to their shareholders every few years the whole of the share capital originally subscribed by them.

Mr. Davis said that if the coal reserves of the country were pooled, the enormous profits made and partially concealed by the large companies would be available to meet part, at least, of any additional working costs that might be necessary, and that the incentive to build up reserves for subsquent distribution, which obscured the enormous profits actually being made, would disappear.

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 17—Harmonious relations between whites and negroes in the South can readily be cultivated, is the conclusion of R. H. Leavell, of Mississippi, one of the investigators on negro migration in 1916-17, the report on which has just been issued through the office of the director of negro economics, department of labor. Mr. Leavell cites particularly, among the experiences of a number of communities, the case of Adams county, of which Natches, Miss., is the sounty seat. The harmony existing there, he believes, is due to the close contact of the leaders of the two races.

"It is significant that in the older counties which line the eastern banks of the Mississippi from Tennessee to the Louisiann line, where relations heatween the races are fairly good, white adult male illiteracy is by counties from one-half to one-fifth what it is in the state as a whole; and that in two counties noterious for whitecapping and expelling negroes white adult male illiteracy is 50 per cent more than for the state as a whole," Mr. Leavell writes.

Relations are most cordial, he asserts, where white illiteracy is lowest, where communities have existed for generations, and whites and blacks have long been in contact; where the soil is fertile; where right of trial in court is maintained for negroes; and

MUCH LIQUOR TRAFFIC

WESTERVILLE, O. May 11.—Paramage of the proposed contribution absolutely the liquor traffic among native races and such other persons as the liquor traffic among native races and such other persons are contributed to the leaves of the leave whatever applies to an American citizen, he says, will apply to any foreigner. The embassy house itself, he says, would not be subjected to search, but neither, he says, would the house of a citizen, unless that house became a place of public resort.

He points out that members of embassies and legations now are given the courtesy of receiving goods duty-free and uninappected, and that under such courtery possibly some liquor might come into the embassies, but that should any foreign representative engage himself in conduct not approved of by the United States that man probably would be deemed persona non grata, just as representatives sometimes have been heretofore.

No foreign embassy, he insists, will be permitted, even if it chose, to make itself a place of public resort for the saile or giving away of liquors.
